Downtown Public Art

A vital component of any urban landscape, the presence of public art in a community signifies the character of the neighborhood. Downtown Missoula has a wealth of public art and culture. Listed below are over 20 works of public art on display in the Downtown area alone.

1. Wagon Wheel

The Wagon Wheel mural is on the north wall of the Clyde Coffee on the southeast corner of Higgins and Fourth.

2. Peace Works

Peace Works was created by area high school students Peter Bradstock, Sarah Jackson, Amanda Keeland, Brittany Kirkland, Sarah Logan, Yuki Sugimoto, and Tara Westle with artist Amie Thurber in the summer of 2000. A mural celebrating diversity with a colorful, festive atmosphere, Peace Works is located at the rear entrance of the Jeannette Rankin Peace Center at 519 S. Higgins.

3. Dreaming Missoula

The Dreaming Missoula sculpture is in the Clark Fork Natural Park on the south side of the Clark Fork River near the Orange Street bridge. The sculpture was created in 1994 by Lynne Hull and Kioko Mwitki, a native of Kenya. Hull sculpted the wood elements, and Mwitki fabricated the metal components.

4. Returnings

The Returnings sculpture (pictured right) is on the East Side of the Higgins Avenue Bridge just north of the Clark Fork River. Created by Jeffrey Funk in 1989 as a project of the City of Missoula Public Art Committee, these three large bronze fish twist among boulders and are a favorite among children.

5. Untitled

The untitled mural in Bess Reed Park on the south end of Clay Street is behind the Holiday Inn Missoula Downtown along the Clark Fork River. Painted by Big Brothers Big Sisters in 1997, this mural features volunteers and children.

6. Cattin' Around

The Cattin' Around sculpture adorns Central Park parking garage in the 100 block of West Main Street. Mike Hollem created this whimsical, ferrous cement depiction of a sprawled alley cat in 1991 as a project of the City of Missoula Public Arts Committee. More recently, the sculpture has been mentioned nationally as a must see for cat lovers. A small puddle of water collects on the cats back to create a birdbath.

7. Studebaker

The Studebaker on the side of the Studebaker Building at 216 West Main Street was created by noted local artist Stan Hughes in 2000. The work pays tribute to the historical background of the Studebaker Building and the heart of the Gasoline Alley historic area, which evolved on West Main Street in the early 1900s and was a project of the City of Missoula Public Arts Committee.

8. Uptown Tiles

The Uptown Apartments, located at 329 Woody Street, has 500 colorful 6-inch ceramic tiles mounted on seven large concrete planters made by hundreds of people at a First Night Missoula celebration.

9. E.S. Paxson Murals

The E.S. Paxson Murals are located inside the Missoula County Courthouse at 200 West Broadway. Created sometime between 1912 and 1914, these historical scenes were painted on canvas with oils.

11. The Heart of Missoula Murals

The Heart of Missoula murals are located at 111 West Broadway, at the corner of Broadway and Higgins Avenues. These murals are the result of a unique public/private collaboration between the Missoula Public Art Committee, the Missoula Redevelopment Agency, and Rick Bice. Artist Hadley Ferguson created seven large panels depicting the University of Montana and Downtown Missoula. The other five panels showcase various buildings and streets as they existed in the early 1900s and feature the Star Garage, the Kohn Clock, early newspaper publishing, Missoula railroads, and the Garden City Brewery.

12. Scenic

The Scenic mural, a painting of scenic mountains and rivers, was created by John Carlton in 1996 on the east side of Plonk at 322 North Higgins Avenue.

13. Missoula Art Park

Completed in the spring of 2017, the Missoula Art Park is Downtown Missoula's new artistic offering. With a new outdoor gathering place complete with tables, chairs, benches, trees and plants, the Art Park offers a place for folks to linger and an outdoor restroom for the public's use. The Missoula Art Museum curates rotating art shows in the outdoor space, improving the quality of life for all.

14. Candy Land

Completed in 2007 at 403 North Higgins and commissioned by Keegan Eisenstat, this artwork represents a colorful landscape of recreation opportunities.

15. Ponder

Located indoors at 140 West Pine, Ponder was designed by Mary Iverson to honor and inspire those who participate in the legislative process. As City Council and community members walk down the long corridor toward the Council Chambers, they are inspired to go through a process of clearing their minds of concerns for their personal lives, and enter the non-partisan, objective mind set required for public service.

16. Walter Hook Series

The Walter Hook Series is located inside the Chambers in City Hall at 435 Ryman Street. Painted in 1984-1985 by Missoula artist Walter Hook, the series of seven oils was purchased with the Bill Cregg Memorial Fund and was a project of the City of Missoula Public Art Committee.

18. Proper Shoppers

Installed at the Mountain Line Transfer Center in 2002, the Proper Shoppers solid bronze sculpture was created by Missoula artist Tom Rippon, a ceramics professor at UM, and is a project of the City of Missoula Public Art Committee. The theme features animals of all types.

22. Crossings

The Crossings sculpture is located in front of the Northern Pacific Railroad Depot at the north end of Higgins Avenue. Consisting of four large red Xs made of enamel on metal with concrete wing walls and platform set on a stone ballast, it represents railroad themes. "Crossings" is a project of the City of Missoula Public Art Committee. Created by Taag Peterson in 1986, the XXXXs relate to the tall trestles necessary for crossing mountain ravine.

23. John Mullan

The John Mullan marble sculpture is located in the plaza at the end of North Higgins Avenue in front of the Northern Pacific Railroad Depot. Created in 1914 and one of just six sculptures remaining, this structure was erected to mark the route of the wagon road, surveyed and built by John Mullan, from Fort Benton to Fort Walla Walla on the Columbia River.

24. Brennan's Wave

This Caras Park sculpture, viewing platform and whitewater feature in the Clark Fork River are named after world-class Missoula kayaker Brennan Guth, who died in Chile in 2001 pursuing his sport and passion.

25. A Carousel for Missoula

That was the promise Missoula cabinet-maker Chuck Kaporich made to the Missoula City Council in 1991. By opening day, May 27, 1995, over 100,000 hours of volunteer time had gone into the construction of 38 permanent ponies, three replacement ponies, two chariots, 14 gargoyles, gargoyle frames and mirror frames, and the largest band organ in continuous use in the United States, all within a jewel box building. You can find it at 101 Carousel Drive.

University of Montana

27. Mountain Waters Currents Aquatic Center

The City of Missoula Public Art Committee commissioned Missoula artist James Todd to create a design to be sandblasted by Nash, Inc. on the exterior of the Currents Aquatic Center. Todd's Mountain Waters design features motifs of North-western wildlife amidst cascading waters.

28. Go with the Flow

This sculpture, which stands 20 feet tall at its highest point, is located at the Park Place Parking Structure, and tells the story of changing water, an element that designer Mike Golins speaks deeply to people in Missoula. "We fish on rivers, tube them, even", he said, "learn life lessons from their currents." Golins' design is a rolling wave that pours into a crashing one that flows into an eddy, and the entire structure points from Downtown Missoula to the Clark Fork River.

Other Downtown Area Public Art:

• MCFD

The Missoula City Fire Department mural is a bas-relief located in the arched alcove on the west side of the Missoula Headquarters Fire Station at the corner of Pine and Madison. Rudy Auto created this colorful work project of the City of Missoula Public Art Committee in 1995 with scenes relating to fire-fighting history.

• Untitled

The mural was designed and produced in 2000 by area high school students Amanda Keeland, Melissa McNay, Carla Rothenbuecher, AC Rothenbuecher and Rachel Bailey with artist Amie Thurber.

• Flower Baskets

Designed by local artist Russell Smith, the son of Russell Smith, Sr., after whom the Federal Courthouse is named, the Downtown Flower baskets were created in two batches and hung in 1981 and 1985. Each of the 72 baskets are individually-designed and crafted with a theme of their own. The Missoula Downtown Association hangs and waters the flowers throughout the summer months.

• Boulevard Banners

Introduced in 1999, the banners (pictured left) feature four designs on four distinctly-colored fabrics. The artwork on three banners depict scenes of Missoula taken from a Mark Gutow watercolor painting. Historic Walking Tour

History can never be covered up, said Chinese Prime Minister Zhu Rongji, and those words could never be truer than in Downtown Missoula. Take the time to look up as you tour the many and varied historical landmarks listed below, and remnants of the past will appear to you in tucked-away corners. Count the historic billboards of long-forgotten places like the Atlantic Hotel and the Diner Cafe and you will see the many layers of history like layers of an onion in the story of Missoula.

1. Wilma Building 131 S. Higgins

Previously known as the Smead-Simons Building, this eight-story Sullivanesque-style building was commonly referred to as the Showplace of Montana after it was constructed in 1921. It was built by William Billy Simons, an early western entrepreneur, who produced Wild West shows and built several theaters in Oregon, Idaho, and Alaska during the Gold Rush. The theater became a living memorial to his wife, Edna Wilma, a famous light opera star. The historic interior of the Wilma building was most recently remodeled in 2015 with state of the art sound and lighting systems, and restoring much of the original décor making it one of the top music venues of its size in the United States. The Wilma was Missoula's first steel framed modern high-rise building.

2. Florence Building 111 N. Higgins

Constructed in 1941, the Florence Building occupies the same site as two earlier Florence Hotels, both of which burned down. Much like the east section of the Palace Hotel (Broadway & Ryman), this hotel was built to accommodate the increasing number of automobile travelers, and included an interior, multi-level parking garage. Today this excellent example of Art Moderne architecture has been converted to an office complex with retail businesses occupying the main floor. The Governor's Room, located on the second floor, is still used as a ballroom/banquet room for special events. The Lobby was recently refurbished to its original state and is also available for special events.

3. Headquarters Building / Daily Annex 113-119 W. Front

Advertised as an Ornament to the Street when constructed in 1888 as a men's social club and saloon, this building and its 1916 partner to the west, the Daily Company Annex, were remodeled over the years with wide metal panels and modern windows dominating the front facade. In 1892 the building witnessed a major fire and the mysterious murder of Maurice Higgins, son of a Missoula founder. The Headquarters' 1990s restoration captures the feel of Missoula's red-light district of the 1880s while the Daily Annex addresses the reform movement to shut down the district. Recognized with both local and state preservation awards, the Headquarters Building/Daily Annex contains a nice display of artifacts and project progress on the second floor. Today the building is home to Bella Sauvage and Laurel Creek Clothing & Gifts.

4. Gleim II Building 255 & 257 W. Front

The Gleim II was a brothel owned and operated by Mary Gleim, whose splashy career included conviction for attempted murder of a rival and a prison term in Deer Lodge. Built around 1893, after two major fires swept the Downtown, this red brick, sage-green building was restored in 1995 and captured a Historic Preservation Award for that effort. This building was one of eight owned by Gleim during the peak years of Missoula's Red Light District. Mother Gleim retained title to this two-story vernacular commercial-style brick building until her death in 1914.

5. Gleim Building 265 W. Front

This classically-styled brick building served as the headquarters for Mary Gleim's bordello businesses along Front Street from early 1890s to approximately 1914. Original arches were uncovered in a 1980's renovation. Listed in the National Register of Historic Places, this building is an excellent example of Romanesque Revival architecture with its arched windows, brick pilasters, checkerboard banding, and granite sills. Through its lifetime, businesses located here included the Pullman Pool Hall (1929), Carroll Nash Cigars (1932), and the Hawthorne Club, a 1940s jazz club.

6. Studebaker Building 216 W. Main

As the automobile gained popularity in the 1910s, stables and garages existed side by side. The succession of businesses at this address documents the transition that must have been hard on the old timers. By 1921, the Main Street Motor Company advertised repairs and rental space for 70 vehicles here. Louis Nybo sold Studebakers, the choice of the Missoula police force until the 1950s.

7. Palace Hotel 147 W. Broadway

First opened as the Savoy Hotel in 1909, this building is one of the few remaining symbols of the prosperous period of time when the expansion of the railroad through Missoula enhanced the growth of the lumber and manufacturing industries. The original structure and a 1941 annex formed Missoula's largest single hotel. As time passed, the hotel's upper floors became an empty, decaying shell, but a 1995 rehabilitation project created 60 upper-floor housing units. Today the Palace Apartments beautifully illustrate how preservation can rejuvenate a city center.

8. Missoula County Courthouse 200 W. Broadway

The neo-classical style sandstone Courthouse (pictured below left) was designed by prominent local architect, A.J. Gibson, and completed in 1910. Features of the building include the impressive clock tower which houses a two-ton bell, massive Ionic support columns, copper-faced entry doors, and vertical panels of beveled glass. Eight murals created by well-known western artist, Edgar S. Paxson, hang in the building's entryway and document the valley's early history.

9. Simons Block 314 N. Higgins

Built in 1899, the Simons Building is one of Downtown Missoula's newest additions to the National Register of Historic Places, earning honors in 2000. Named after Missoula businessman Louis N. Simons, the building was originally an art store that evolved into a general hardware store in the 1920s. It was also home to one of the city's last bordellos. The second floor was vacant for close to 30 years before Dick Clemow began renovation.

10. Higgins Block 202 N. Higgins

The Higgins Block, commissioned by Missoula co-founder C.P. Higgins in 1889, is Missoula's finest example of Queen Anne commercial architecture. Higgins was one of Missoula County's original county commissioners and a member of Montana's first Territorial Legislature. The Higgins Block includes the gray granite, copper-domed corner building and the red poly-chromed brick structures to the north and east. This National Register building, was restored in the early 1980s. The Higgins Block is home to several businesses today, including Opportunity Bank, Doc's Gourmet Sandwich Shop, and Butterfly Herbs.

11. Masonic Temple 120-136 E. Broadway

Built in 1909, the Masonic Temple is the only Beaux Arts style building in Missoula's central business district. Particularly notable for its arched bays, elaborate terra cotta cornice, frieze work, and its elevator, the building still serves as home to the Masons in addition to numerous office and retail businesses.

12. U.S. Post Office & Federal Building 200 E. Broadway

Designed in the Italian Renaissance revival style and constructed of Indiana limestone and granite, this building was formerly called the Federal Building. The original building was erected between 1911-1913, and the east addition was built in 1929. The north addition was erected in 1937. Listed on the National Register of Historic Places the building housed the U.S. Federal District Court from 1929 to the mid 1990's, and continues to be the home to Region 1 of the US Forest Service.

13. Carnegie Library/ Missoula Art Museum 335 N. Pattee

Designed by A.J. Gibson and built in 1902-03, the Carnegie Library presents itself as a temple of learning in the style of Carnegie libraries across the country. Gibson's windows add a noticeable design aspect through their lighter-colored stone surrounds capped by keystones, which stand in high contrast to the dark brick walls. The second story, designed by Gibson's assistant, Ole Bakke, was added in 1913. The building currently houses the Missoula Art Museum. The modern addition to the south was added in 2006, and increased the usable area in the Museum by almost fifty percent.

14. Northern Pacific Railroad Depot Railroad & N. Higgins

When the track of the Northern Pacific reached Missoula in 1883, it was possibly the most significant event in the town's history. Reliable transportation created a major economic and commercial distribution hub for Western Montana. This depot building was designed by Reed and Stem, a celebrated architectural firm from St. Paul, Minn., that designed over 100 depots in America, including New York City's Grand Central Station. Built in 1901, this National Historic Register building is an architecturally significant example of simplified Renaissance Revival architecture, which represents the historic importance of rail transportation to this city.

15. St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church 420 W. Pine

Constructed between 1891 and 1892, this church is a major religious, architectural, and artistic landmark in Missoula. Its 144-foot-high polygonal tent roof spire continues to be a landmark of the Missoula skyline. The interior of this National Register church contains murals painted around 1900 by Brother J. Carignano, who also painted the murals in the St. Ignatius Mission.

16. Lewis and Clark Interpretive Site Caras Park

If you wish to learn more about the Lewis & Clark Expedition's journey through the Missoula Valley in 1805 and 1806, the British Explorer David Thompson's brief visit in 1812, and the French-Canadian's and Salish Indian's unique names for the area, there are four large and detailed local history interpretive signs located at Caras Park along the Clark Fork Riverfront Trail in Downtown Missoula (next to the Brennan's Wave Overlook).

Missoula's Downtown Historic Districts

East Pine Street Historic District

Missoula's first exclusive residential area grew up along East Pine Street, and today it's one of Missoula's seven historical districts. The predominating man-made feature and unifying visual element of the District is its historic boulevard, which consists of approximately 15-foot-wide boulevards with large maple trees on each side of the street and a unique 25-foot-wide grass median. There are a variety of historic buildings, most of them are multi-family or single-family residences built between 1872 and 1940. All but six of the 50 major buildings were constructed before 1940. The district contains the city's oldest residence (Francis Worden House 1874), and the A.J. Gibson designed Governor Joseph Dixon mansion, both located in the 300 block of East Pine.

Southside Historic District

This colorful historic district charts Missoula's transformation from a rough frontier town to an established community. Anticipating a need to escape the flurry and bustle of Missoula's town center north of the Clark Fork River, Federal Judge Hiram Knowles platted this addition in 1890. By the mid-1890s, gracious Queen Anne style residences proclaimed the Southside as a wealthy haven. Between 1908 and 1910, the arrival of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad on the Southside's edge added the Milwaukee Depot. There are over 60 structures on the Southside Historic District walking tour.

University Area Historic District

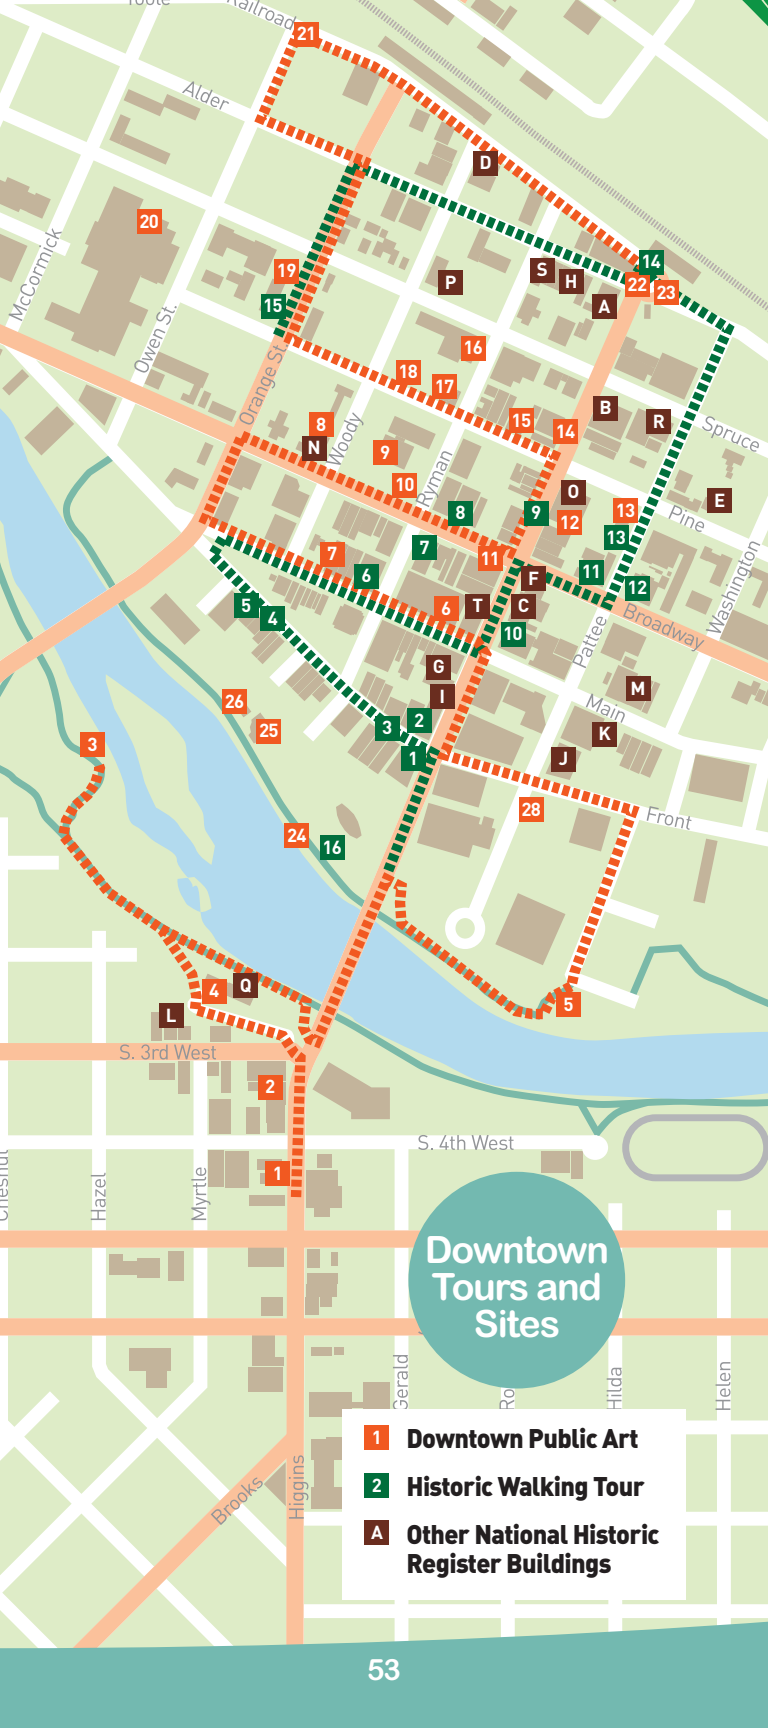

Bounded by South 4th St. E., Beckwith Avenue, Arthur Avenue and Higgins Avenue, the University Area Historic District was officially placed on the National Register of Historic Places on December 13, 2000. Missoula's largest historic district, the University Area District contains some stunning examples of Queen Anne, Craftsman, and Revival styles of architecture.

Downtown Historic District

Bounded by the Northern Pacific Railroad, the Clark Fork River to the south, Missoula's historic downtown is Missoula's ninth Historic district. The district includes residential neighborhoods on both the east and west sides, as well as the mixed use historic core that grew up between the Northern Pacific Depot and the Missoula Mercantile, which was located next to the original Missoula Mill site. Including the East Pine Street Historic District, there are more than 450 contributing structures in the historic downtown district. More than 40 downtown buildings are individually listed in the National Register of Historic Places.
